'57 Chevy® Coupé

Bis Anfang der 50er Jahre galt die Marke Chevrolet® als zuverlässig, genoss allerdings bei der Jugend weniger Ansehen. Dies änderte sich schlagartig 1955, als der solide und bewährte Sechszylinder Motor durch den leistungsstarken V8 ersetzt wurde. Das neue, drehfreudige Triebwerk war dank neuer Gießereiverfahren deutlich leichter als sein Vorgänger, lieferte aber spürbar mehr Leistung. Unter der Leitung des Chefstilisten Harley Earl kamen zudem vollständig neue, sportlich-aggressive Karosserien auf den Markt. Jetzt interessierte sich auch zusehends die Jugend für die Marke Chevrolet®. Obwohl sich die äußere Erscheinung wenig geändert hatte, nahmen die Modelle des Jahres 1957, allen voran der Bel Air® (Version Typ B), eine Ausnahmeposition in der Automobilgeschichte ein. Die Karosserie besaß immer noch die diskreten Chromteile, auch die große Panorama Scheibe blieb unverändert. Allerdings waren Front- und Heckpartie deutlich überarbeitet. Die horizontal verlaufenden hinteren Kotflügel verfügten über Heckflossen, die in raketenförmigen Heckleuchten endeten. Der wuchtige Kühlergrill nahm zudem in seinen Ausmaßen deutlich zu, die Motorhaube verfügte jetzt über raketenähnliche Zierelemente. Dennoch erhielt sich der Chevy® eine sehr harmonische, einheitliche Linienführung. Auch der Motor bot Neuerungen. Der 4,6 Liter mit Benzineinspritzung lieferte beachtliche 283 PS, der den Chevy® auf 200 km/h Spitzengeschwindigkeit brachte. Der Chevy® Bel Air® Coupé glänzte mit gold-getönten Elementen an der Karosserie. Insbesondere seine Heckpartie machte den Wagen zu der einzigartigen Verkörperung des Stils der 50er Jahre und zu einem Klassiker ohnegleichen, der Generationen begeisterte. Mit (Version Typ C) Cragar Fünfspeichenräder, Goodyear Reifen und zusätzlichen Ansaugstutzen war der Chevy® als Dragster Mitte der 60er Jahre häufig zu sehen. Selbst gut 30 Jahre später, immer noch populärer Oldtimer, ist der Chevy® auf der Straße zu finden (Version Typ A), der nach wie vor Blicke auf sich zieht und Autofans begeistert.

'57 Chevy® Coupé

By the early fifties the Chevrolet® had gained a reputation for reliability, but it had minimum appeal for the young. This changed decisively in 1955 when the robust and dependable six cylinder engine was replaced by the powerful V-8. The lively new engine, thanks to a new casting process, was much lighter than its predecessor, but it delivered significantly more power. Under the leadership of the chief stylist, Harley Earl, it came on the market with a completely new, aggressive and sporty body. Now the younger generation were taking appreciably more interest in the Chevrolet®. Although its external appearance had changed little, the 1957 models occupy an exceptional position in the history of the car, and none more than the Bel Air® (type B). The bodywork still had the discrete chrome fittings and the broad panorama windscreens remained unchanged, but the front and rear were clearly redesigned. The horizontal rear mudguard had rear fins that terminated in rocket-shaped tail lights. The hefty radiator grill also increased in size, the bonnet now had rocket-like ornaments. This gave the Chevy® a very harmonious, uniform line. The engine also offered some innovations. The 4.6 litre fuel injection system delivered a substantial 283 bhp, giving the Chevy® a top speed of 200 km/h. The body of the Chevy® Bel Air® Coupé gleams with gold-tinted trim. The rear view of the car in particular is a unique embodiment of the fifties style and an unparalleled classic that has captivated generations. With Cragar five-spoked wheel, Goodyear tyres and extra intake stubs, the Chevy® (C type) was often to be seen as a dragster in the mid sixties. Even a good 30 years later, the Chevy® (A type) can still be seen on the road, a popular old-timer that attracts attention and captivates car enthusiasts.
